Hi Mike:

Julie Goebel called me back and confirmed the total number of authorized beds in medical surgical is not changing. It is just that the rooms where the LTC unit was are being re-allocated to existing med surgical beds. Apparently some of the MS beds on the 4th and 5th floors are being moved up to the 11th floor where the LTC unit was located. It will result in more private rooms and a better configuration of space to certain services. I've copied Julie Goebel who provided me with this information.

The COE does affirmatively state no increase in licensed bed capacity – says the 13 rooms will be used for MS beds w/o any increase in licensed bed capacity. Let me make sure that when Dr. Lucore's letter stated the previously surrendered beds would be re-allocated for MS he was also simply referring to the rooms being re-allocated, not actual beds. I'll let you know as soon as I hear.

Mike:

My understanding is that the 13 beds that were discontinued were simply discontinued and the rooms are being used for med/surg beds, but there is no re-allocation. I think that is what we said in the COE to discontinue the unit. Let me confirm with the Hospital.

Hi Clare:

St. John is limited to 20 beds being added to m/s beds and not 37 m/s beds. we were not told that the 24 beds were being converted to m/s beds in the original letter submitted to us which is attached. I see it is now being mentioned in the completeness letter. Am I missing a letter.
